EDITOR'S NOTE

It is with much regret that I must make the following announcements. The Law Review has, as have so many other organizations throughout the country, been confronted with substantial increases in costs without any accompanying increase in allocation. To compensate for the resulting financial deficiencies, we have been forced to take the following measures. First, we will not be publishing the third issue of this volume of the Law Review. Second, to avoid having to omit future issues of the Law Review, we must cut back and, in the near future, completely eliminate our program of sending Law Reviews to the members of the Maryland State Bar Association. Third, we have raised our subscription price.

On behalf of the Law Review, I would like to apologize to those who are affected by these decisions. Most significantly are those authors and editors who spent many long and difficult hours working on articles for publication and who now, because of the need to eliminate the third issue, will be unable to experience the full satisfaction of their work.
